A NAME EARNED
Tim Tingle
$9.95 / 978-1-939053-18-3
160 pages / 4½ x 7 paper
Ages: 12 to 16 / Reading level: 2.5

Your life is carved by the choices you make. You earn your name by your actions.
The trouble started with a blaring car horn, loud enough to wake up the whole neighborhood. BEEEEEEEERP!
“That’s my dad,” said Lloyd, shouting over the screaming horn. “That’s his truck horn. It has to be him!”
Lights came on up and down the street. Johnny stood up and flung the door aside. I looked at Faye, and we both had the same thought. Lloyd is in danger.

“Do something,” she said, gripping my hand. “Now!”

In the third book in the No Name series, the turmoil in Bobby Byington’s life has settled down. His parents are reunited, his father has turned away from the bottle, and he is a starter on the high school basketball team.
But the door to trouble never stays closed. Bobby’s girlfriend, next-door-neighbor Faye, still suffers attacks from a bullying classmate, and Lloyd, one of Bobby’s teammates, is dealing with family problems that are all too familiar. Maybe Bobby’s old backyard hideout will need to be uncovered and the door reopened.

TRUST YOUR NAME

168 pages / 4½ x 7 paper
Ages: 12 to 16 / Reading level: 2.5 / available July

After Bobby Byington’s unforgettable winning high school season, Coach Robison recruits Choctaw players from several communities to play in a summer league. Coach selects the Panther as the team’s mascot, saying, “To many Choctaws, young and old, the Panther is an elder watching over us, helping us when we are in need.”
As the team gels and they move to the national tournament they find out they are up against more than other basketball teams. They must deal with racist taunts and unfair sportsmanship on the court. The situation comes to a head when, on the eve of a key game against a bullying opponent, two Choctaw players are arrested for robbery.
Never doubting their innocence, Coach Robison asks, “Who can we trust, and how can we find the truth?”

Author bio: The author of 6 PathFinder novels, Tim Tingle (Choctaw) is a four-time winner of the American Indian Youth Literature Award for House of Purple Cedar (2016), How I Became a Ghost (2014), Danny Blackgoat: Navajo Prisoner (2014), and Crossing Bok Chitto (2008). He was also the recipient of the 2015 Wordcraft Circle of Native Writers and Storytellers Award for his PathFinders novel No Name.

Reaching Reluctant Readers: 7th Generation PathFinders Novels

- Fast-Paced Hi-Lo Novels
- Grade Reading Levels 2.5–4.5
- Native Teen Protagonists

Joseph Bruchac

“Joseph Bruchac’s books are about empowerment. They relay stories of morally sound Native protagonists who face great adversity. Often, the central characters are young adults whose elders have taught them about both their Indigenous traditions and self-defense. Their honed moral and physical strength allows these teenagers to face the various trials of an unjust world.”

—Ryan Winn, Tribal College Journal, Fall 2017

The Long Run
Joseph Bruchac

“This is an eminently hopeful story that deftly manages to avoid an overload of sentiment or sappiness. Bruchac provides an appealing, accessible story with a slim page count and direct, straightforward third-person narration that will likely serve reluctant readers well.”

“The Long Run will keep young readers turning pages. Its protagonist, Travis Hawk, is a 17-year-old whose mother’s passing caused an acceleration in his father’s drinking. With nowhere else to turn, Travis decides to run back to the only loving home he knows and embark on a cross-country trip from Seattle to Maine to reconnect with his grandparents. The Long Run is a stirring story about a young man who empowers himself to succeed against the odds.”

—Ryan Winn, Tribal College Journal, Fall 2017

Walking Two Worlds
Joseph Bruchac

“Bruchac is a dedicated, authentic voice for the Native experience, as his numerous publications, including historical fiction for teens, attest. His Abenaki ancestry lends reliable insight into Ely’s experiences and judgments as he carefully moves from young lad to fulfilling the destiny of that long-ago dream.”

The No Name Series is the story of Bobby Byington, a Choctaw teen who is proud to be a starter on his high school basketball team but whose personal life is filled with turmoil. Basketball and friendship are driving forces, as Bobby and his friends deal with parental alcoholism, school bullies, and prejudice.

No Name
Tim Tingle
“In a simply but lyrically told tale, a Choctaw boy builds himself a hole in the ground to hide from his alcoholic father. Bobby finds support from his Cherokee basketball-player friend Johnny, his neighbor Carolina Faye, and his dad’s friend Mr. Robison, who tells him a Choctaw story about a boy called No Name and his fraught relationship with his father. Bobby’s mixed emotions toward his own flawed father, and his father’s toward him, are conveyed in straightforward yet revealing lines of dialogue and first-person narration (“He might be the biggest bully in town, but he was still my dad”). Expressive and many-layered.” —Kirkus Reviews, September 15, 2014

Ages: 12 to 16 / Reading level: 2.5

No More No Name
Tim Tingle
“The relationships in No More No Name are carefully developed, offering readers a best-practices model for caring intervention. The basketball action is clear and engaging, and readers so inclined will wish they could play under Coach Robison. A lesson in sympathy, delivered with heart.” —Kirkus Reviews, June 2017
“Book two in the No Name series deals head-on with heavy topics, such as racism, alcoholism, bullying, teamwork, and familial forgiveness. It’s good to see the language and traditions of the Native American experience so prominently woven throughout a straightforward sports story.” —Booklist, September 2017

Little Brother of War

“The tension between respecting Choctaw tradition and embracing change are at the heart of Robinson's strong addition to the PathFinders series about Native American teens, written by Native authors. Written at a fourth-grade reading level, the story captures the believable friction in Randy’s family and introduces a bit of American culture that will be new to many readers.” —Publishers Weekly
